

Basic Issues in Microprocessor Architecture

Bryan M. Sobczyk

ECE 511 Microprocessors Seminar

November 10, 2008

4:30-5:30 pm

Robinson Hall A243

Abstract:

This paper surveys the issues and constraints of modern microprocessor design. Basic physical issues with feature size, die size, power consumption, and timing constraints will be presented. Memory and cache techniques will be presented to improve throughput and shorten critical delays. All topics will be discussed in relation to actual microprocessor and multiprocessor architectures past and present.